Jean Fontaine, 133 Ingleoak Lane, spoke against the Open Carry Gun Bill passed by the South Carolina House of Representatives and cited her reasons for encouraging City Council to support a Resolution opposing this law. Ms. Fontaine suggested Council discuss this bill with Police Chief Howie Thompson and speak out on what is good for this community and its citizens.

Prior to individuals speaking regarding Item 15c, Mayor White referred to the proposed moratorium and acknowledged Councilmembers who wanted to address the matter.

Councilmember DeWorken stated he plans to ask to table the item because he believes the City can be more deliberate with its process, particularly with its partners, and he wants there to be full transparency.

Councilmember Stall shared the concerns of Councilmember DeWorken and stated he finds the moratorium to be rather excessive.

Councilmember Dowe stated she can support a postponement of the item with a defined period of time and commented if there is a lesson to be learned from this item, it is the lack of transparency. Councilmember Dowe referred to the neighborhoods' feeling of commercial creep and the need to consider and receive input from multiple stakeholders.

Councilmember DeWorken agreed with Councilmember Dowe's suggestion to add a time certain, and recommended staff reach out to the developers, neighborhood leaders, and GVL2040 comp plan Steering Committee members and return to Council with information in two meetings' time.

Councilmember Stall asked for the difference between a postponement and a no vote. Mayor White responded that postponing or tabling of an item means it has been deferred unless there is a time certain to return as Councilmember DeWorken is requesting. Councilmember Dowe suggested this is a good time for Planning staff to perform outreach with the stakeholder groups while waiting on the bids to rewrite the zoning code.

Councilmember Flemming stated her district has the most areas that would have a moratorium on it as well as the largest number of gentrified units. Councilmember Flemming also stated she has no issue with being open and transparent, however, she hopes there is not a large amount of multi-family complexes being approved and people becoming millionaires off of it. Councilmember Flemming suggested the need for better communication.

Councilmember Gibson stated he does not know what a delay would provide and referred to a number of areas in his district that is already affected. Councilmember Gibson also stated by not imposing the moratorium, the City runs the risk of a rash of permits getting into the pipeline which cannot be stopped. Councilmember Gibson suggested it would be more prudent to impose the moratorium, start the discussion process, and then vote to loosen the restrictions to accommodate accordingly. Councilmember Gibson commented he is all for Greenville being a place that is good for business, but he is more into it being a good place to live. Councilmember Gibson advised that amendments could be made between now and the second and final reading in two weeks.

Councilmember DeWorken thanked Councilmembers Flemming and Gibson for their input and stated after speaking with staff, he was informed that a moratorium was not the only tool available to change commercial properties, especially those next to neighborhoods. Councilmember DeWorken referred to the ability to implement text amendments as a tool and commented on being uncomfortable with the moratorium coming across a little heavy handed.

Councilmember Brasington stated he believes there is shared passion and priority among all of Council regarding neighborhood protection and preservation. Councilmember Brasington shared he has been uneasy and reluctant with a moratorium and stated he believes there are a number of ways to approach the matter.

Councilmember Gibson stated his understanding of the way that most of the codes are written is that there are no real other options in place to stem the tide of commercial growth.

Mayor White stated he thinks Laurens Road should not be zoned C-3, but rather C-2, which could be handled quicker, citing Stone Avenue and Augusta Road as examples. Councilmember Brasington responded he is not willing to rush to the extreme without fully tossing the availability of other measures and that we may be able to get more done in short term. Councilmember Dowe stated she receives as many calls on C-2 as she does for C-3 and that she is willing to give a pause to the issue to receive input from the stakeholder groups.

Councilmember Flemming stated four years ago, the City encouraged the West Greenville area to rezone as RDV (Redevelopment District), however, she believes they should have stayed Single-family residential. Councilmember Flemming recommended holding permits for 30 days to have discussions and to be transparent.

Mayor White stated there are projects in the works which the City wants, including affordable housing, and shared his concern with unintended consequences.

Frank Hammond, 95 Forest Lane, spoke in opposition to Item 15c stating the moratorium is something a government does when it has failed to plan and implement properly. Mr. Hammond also stated the City is sending the wrong message and while we are having issues with growth, a moratorium is not the answer to the problem.

Chris Bailey, Greater Greenville Association of Realtors, spoke in opposition to Item 15c stating the organization has a standing policy opposing moratoriums regarding development. Mr. Bailey also stated he fears this moratorium will be extended beyond the six-month period and offered representation from GGAR if a stakeholders group is formed.

Earle Furman, founder of NAI Earle Furman, spoke in opposition to Item 15c stating he does not believe a moratorium is a good idea and that out of town investors already have issues to deal with regarding development without facing a moratorium. Mr. Furman recommended an alternative of a PD (Planned Development) for properties adjoining private neighborhoods.

Michael Dey, Vice-President of Government Affairs for the Homebuilders Association of Greenville, spoke in opposition to Item 15c stating the group opposes moratoriums as a matter of principal because they deny property owners their rights of due process. Mr. Dey asked Council to table this item.

Mr. Dey also spoke regarding Item 15a saying the Association supports a reasonable noise ordinance, encourages its members to comply with one, and considers the ordinance being discussed a reasonable one. However, Mr. Dey referred to the number of times the noise ordinance has come before Council over the past few years and shared concern for the ordinance starting to affect construction within the City. Mr. Dey requested an opportunity to create a small group of homebuilders to meet with staff and to collaboratively address noise issues before proceeding with the matter.
